Introduction | Mission / Vision | Core Competency | A New Conflict of Interest

Guardian · The Tenant's Advocate

Guardian is a real estate advisory company that represents the interests of companies seeking to lease or purchase commercial property. Guardian does not represent landlords, nor do we manage or own commercial property. Instead, we strictly limit our practice to representing the interests of tenants and owner/users. This practice allows us to avoid the conflict of interests so prevalent within real estate firms that attempt to represent both landlords and tenants. Guardian understands that one bad real estate decision can cripple a company for many years. By eliminating any commitment to landlords, we are free to aggressively negotiate against them.

Guardian is committed to reducing real estate risk and occupancy costs on behalf of its clients - the Tenant. Our commitment to safeguarding tenants' interests consistently yields savings in excess of 15%, often times more.

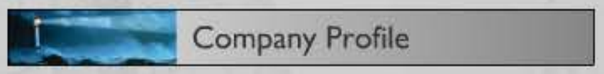
Core Competency

Guardian understands that each client is unique. Accordingly, we listen carefully to understand each client's direction and objectives. Then we perform, diligently and completely, often protecting our clients from problems they don't even know exist.



Introduction | Mission / Vision | Core Competency | A New Conflict of Interest

A New Conflict of Interest Has Emerged

Since its inception approximately 35 years ago, tenant brokerage has consolidated into a few large brokerages that dominate each major metropolitan area. These firms have many agents representing numerous "tenant" clients seeking similar space in the same marketplace. As markets tighten, agents within the same firm find themselves competing against each other for the same space on behalf of different tenants.

When this occurs, a brokerage has a serious conflict of interest that should be disclosed to its clients. Often it is not. Politics within the brokerage may dictate that the client represented by the most senior broker secures the coveted space. The other clients are shuffled to less desirable space, never the wiser.

Unlike our competitors, Guardian never represents two similarly situated companies seeking space in the same marketplace. Simply put, we refuse business that may create a conflict between clients. We know of no other real estate brokerage that will take this position for its clients. Our objective is to represent a small number of prestigious clients and provide them all with uncompromising service and incomparable results.

"Simply put, we refuse business that may create a conflict between clients. We know of no other real estate brokerage that will make this claim."

In addition, Guardian is not under pressure from Wall Street to report favorable earnings, nor do we waste time and energy reporting to a distant parent company. These powerful external forces can pressure agents working for large firms to conclude transactions quickly in order to expedite commission revenue. At Guardian, the only person we answer to is you. We take extra time and put forth the effort necessary to ensure our clients are protected. Guardian's unique platform allows us to avoid even the appearance of impropriety and concentrate solely on representing your fiduciary interests. The result is a delivery of customer service unmatched in the industry, which is tailored to securing the most cost effective and logistically sound real estate transaction possible - guaranteed.

To Whom it may Concern:

I first met Robert Chavez through a referral from a business associate in September of 2005. After an initial telephone conversation we agreed to interview Robert to potentially engaging him to represent us as our commercial real estate broker. Robert arrived at the meeting professionally prepared. His detailed knowledge of the market was impressive, as was his background, experience and qualifications. Shortly after that initial meeting I engaged his services to assist us in leasing approximately 14,000 sq. ft. of office space in downtown Los Angeles.

Robert's initial due diligence included a presentation of over sixty buildings for my review. He and I personally inspected over twenty five locations, narrowed the field to twelve, and ultimately presented proposals to six. Throughout this process Robert provided significant technical expertise in terms of market evaluation, economic and suitability factors. He took the time to understand our business model and our specific needs, and actively assisted in guiding me to the most appropriate buildings that would meet our requirements.

Upon selecting a specific property and entering into a letter of intent, Robert remained actively engaged throughout lengthy lease negotiations with the landlord. Right up to the point of execution he assisted our attorney and me with detailed reviews of multiple lease drafts. Robert was instrumental in reducing our risk, obtaining very favorable lease terms and securing significant concessions from the landlord.

I was very impressed with Robert's professional style, market knowledge and attention to detail. Robert's tenacity and willingness to relentlessly "stick with the fight" ultimately reduced our pro forma real estate overhead by more than 30% over the next ten years.. I plan on using him in the future as our business grows, and would highly recommend him to others seeking commercial office space for their business.

Very truly yours,

Employment Opportunities

Guardian is currently seeking energetic self-motivated individuals interested in a real estate career representing commercial office and industrial tenants.

Unlike most real estate firms, we have made a conscious effort to limit the number of agents working at Guardian. Our professionals receive strategic one-on-one training and are not limited internally to territories. We rarely duplicate marketing efforts and are able to work together from a vast pool of prospective clients absent internal conflict.

If you are interested in learning more about this unique opportunity please send your resume to and brief cover letter to jobs@guardianusa.net
